THE ROAD TO HEALTH!
HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Cure of a Disordered Liver and bad Digestion. Copy of a Letter from Mr. R. W. Kirkus, Chemist, 7, Prescot-street, Liverpool, dated 6th June, 1851.
To Professor Holloway.
Sir—Your Pills and Ointment have stood the highest on our sale list of Proprietary Medicines for some years. A customer, to whom I can refer for any inquiries, desires me to let you know the particulars of her case. She had been troubled for years with a disordered liver and bad digestion. On the last occasion, however, the virulence of the attack was so alarming, and the inflammation set in so severely, that doubts were entertained of her not being able to bear up under it; fortunately she was induced to try your Pills, and she informs me that after the first, and each succeeding dose, she had great relief. She continued to take them, and although she used only three boxes, she is now in the enjoyment of perfect health. I could have sent you many more cases, but the above, from the severity of the attack, and the speedy cure, I think speaks much in favor of your astonishing Pills. (Signed) R. W. KIRKUS.

In accordance with recent advices from Professor Holloway, of 244, Strand, London, the above invaluable Medicine will in future be sold at REDUCED PRICES at the stores of the undersigned, viz., 3s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 14s., 28s., and 42s.

GOOD NEWS.
LARGE AND EXTENSIVE STOCK.
"GOLD!" "GOLD!!"
SAMUEL DAVIS, of the Australian Store, Goulburn, begs to acquaint his friends and the numerous arrivals for the Gold-fields at Tuena, Araluen, and Turl Turl, that his stock is the largest and most complete of any establishment out of Sydney, and that he is determined to sell at such prices as will render it impossible for any house, even in the great capital of New South Wales, to compete with him, everything being imported direct from the manufacturer, and bought for cash by his agent.
To attempt to enumerate the varied assortment would be impossible. His old friends are fully aware that his is the cheapest house in the southern district, and new comers will soon satisfy themselves that that character is well deserved.
Cradles, shovels, spades, and every description of digging apparatus can be got positively cheaper than at Sydney, or at any other store in the colony.
Wool, Tallow, Sheepskins, Gold, and other produce, bought for cash, in any quantity.
P.S. S. D. is prepared to advance on Gold, and other produce consigned to his Agent in Sydney, who is sure to obtain the highest market price. Observe!

The Casilda, American schooner, arrived yesterday from Guihine, one of the independent Society Islands, bringing a large cargo of oranges intended for the Port Phillip market. They are very fine fruit, and the native method of packing shows a deal of ingenuity. The oranges are rolled in a leaf and then coupled together, so as to prevent them touching and thus saving them from decay for a long time. They are said to be in great abundance on this island, and the trees attain a large size. The reigning chief, Aripaia has been supplanted by a rebel named Teuruli, a circumstance which had not occurred for thirty years before. At the neighbouring island of Raiatia, a revolution had also taken place, attended with loss of life: the old chief, Tarmatoa, having been wounded, and finally overthrown, by an insurgent named Tamarii. There had been upwards of thirty killed and fifty wounded during the affray. All was, however, quiet on the departure of the Casilda.

The Rory O'More and Wanderer were working down the harbour at dusk. It is expected that the Douglas will proceed to sea this morning.

THE RURAL LABOUR MARKET.

IF there be any truth in the rumour that the Government are about to pay off the Land and Immigration Debentures for no other reason than because the flourishing state of the territorial revenue enables them to do so, we must again express our surprise at so indiscreet a procedure.

Nothing, surely, can be more manifest to reflecting men, on calmly surveying the present aspect of our social and industrial affairs, than the fact that a copious and continuous stream of immigration is the grand desideratum of our times. A second California has sprung up within our own territory; but the difference between the American and the Australian California is this, that while the former attracted at once a large influx of population from other countries, the latter has so far not only failed to draw population from without, but has diverted and is diverting a considerable portion of her own population from her towns and her sheepwalks to her gold-mines. The former had no established interests to be injuriously acted upon by her great discovery. The latter has large amounts of property, the fruits of more than half a century's enterprise, upon which her gold fields may exert a detrimental if not a ruinous influence. That they have not already done so to a much wider extent than has been experienced, is a matter of agreeable disappointment. But the influence may in the end be all the more pernicious for having been stealthy and gradual rather than sudden and violent. The first rush was soon followed by a recoil. The search for gold was to the colonists an occupation altogether new. They were not prepared either for its toils, its privations, or its uncertainties; and consequently most of the adventurers abandoned it in disgust, and returned to their ordinary avocations. Now, however, gold-hunting has become a household word—a thing familiar to us all, to our ears and our imagination if not to our personal experience. The people (at least those of our own colony) are no longer dazzled by visions of miraculous wealth. They no longer dream of sallying forth into regions where gold may without effort be gathered by the bushel. Their views are sobered down to the plain realities which a twelvemonth's practice has brought to light. They are aware that in the search for precious metals, as in all other pursuits, luck is the exception, labour the rule. They are aware, too, that in this occupation labour is more arduous, discomfort more severe, and success more precarious, than in most others. Knowing all this, our labouring classes are on that account the less inclined to rush hastily, and in great numbers, from their old employments to the new one. But they are inclined, nevertheless, to go; and sooner or later the inclination is obeyed. They make suitable preparations, such as saving money for the purchase of an outfit, and for their subsistence during the first stages of the adventure; and then they go. They go with their minds up for hard work, and hard fare, and a measure of ill success. And going thus, their departure is a work of time. But still the time comes round when they and their old employers must separate. And this separation is gradually becoming more frequent in all parts of the colony, especially in those parts where vacancies thus created are the most difficult to fill up.

And it is because these vacancies are not supplied by corresponding accessions of labour from without, that the consequences are likely to tell most disastrously upon our agricultural and pastoral interests. Even before the gold came, our supplies of rural labour did not keep pace with the demand; and the consequence was, the increase of our flocks was checked, and thousands upon thousands of our sheep, which would otherwise have been depastured for the sake of their wool, were slaughtered for the sake of their tallow. What must be the case now? What will be the case hereafter, if the present state of things be left to take its course? The Times has warned the manufacturers of Yorkshire to expect a falling off in the imports of the great staple for which they have been accustomed to depend so largely upon the flocks of Australia. Nor was the warning gratuitous or premature. We fear our export tables at the end of the current year will tell a melancholy tale both for Australian flockmasters and for British manufacturers. Not only will the increase of flocks be stayed, but their existing numbers must be diminished. Where shepherds cannot be had, there is no resource but the knife and the cauldron. Through the influence of our mines, shepherds are slowly, but not the less surely, becoming scarcer and scarcer: the knife and the pot, those ruthless enemies of the fleece, must therefore be more freely used than ever.

Under these circumstances, it becomes the interest of British merchants and manufacturers to employ all their influence in procuring for us an extensive and immediate immigration. We can have no doubt that the Home Government would rather discourage than promote any mode of relief which would strengthen our objection to convicts. Their policy is to drive these colonies, so to speak, into a corner; to force us into the alternative of Convict Labour or No Labour. Now, as the colonists are unalterably determined that convicts they will not have, under any circumstances, or whatever may be the consequences, our friends in Yorkshire should reflect that their alternative, in relation to Australia, is Free Emigration or No Wool.

The duty of our own Government is obvious—to employ the utmost available farthing of the Land Fund in averting from the colony the calamities which now lour over her agricultural and pastoral interests. To think of hoarding up the money in such times and with such prospects as these, would be the extreme of impolicy and injustice.

THE colonists of the Canterbury Settlement have been much grieved to learn that Mr. J. R. GODLEY had resigned his appointment of agent to the Canterbury Association. No reason has been given for this step, but it is supposed that as the Association insists on managing the affairs of the colonists by a Committee sitting in London, instead of allowing that degree of self-government which was a main feature in the original scheme, Mr. GODLEY feels that he cannot be a party to such a proceeding. The announcement that Mr. FOX, for several years the Wellington Agent of the New Zealand Company, is to succeed Mr. GODLEY, has caused both alarm and indignation. He has no principles in common with those on which the settlement was founded. The Lyttleton Times aptly illustrates the objections to this appointment as follows:—"Mr. COBDEN may be an excellent man and a useful politician, and yet no one would think of making him Secretary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. Upon those distinctive points which affect the character of this settlement, Mr. FOX's opinions are known to be as widely different from those of the Canterbury Association as Mr. COBDEN's from the Propagation Society; and either the Association have renounced their principles, or Mr. Fox is not suited to represent them." The settlement appears to be making considerable progress. Governor-in-Chief GREY has been there and expressed his approbation of the exertions of the settlers.

ADJOURNED COURTS OF QUARTER SESSIONS.—Our readers are aware that in consequence of stress of weather detaining the steamer too late, the Court of Quarter Sessions that should have been held in Maitland on Monday, the 12th April, was held to have lapsed, the Chairman and Crown Prosecutor not arriving till the Tuesday. The four magistrates who were in attendance had opened the Court pro forma on Monday, and adjourned it for a day, but this was held to be insufficient, on the ground that the presence of the Chairman was necessary to legally open to the Court. It is now decided by the Crown Law Officers that this opinion was wrong, and that the adjournment by the magistrates was sufficient; and that at any future time, in the event of the accidental detention of the Chairman, any two magistrates may open and adjourn the court from day to day till he arrives.—Maitland Mercury.

The Court of Requests in its extended jurisdiction will commence its sittings this morning at 10 o'clock, with a list of thirty-one new, and three continued causes. The undefended causes will be called on first.

CHINESE LABOUR.—The man Lipo, given into custody by Mr. Darvall's overseer, for misconduct, and who was remanded on Wednesday in consequence of the Government Interpreter not being conversant with his dialect, was brought before the Bench yesterday, but the endeavour to obtain an interpreter had been unsuccessful, and the man was discharged from custody. Mr. Darvall declared that he would not allow him to return to his service, several men having narrowly escaped very severe injury, if not death, at his hands, having set upon them with a hoe while at work. Another gentleman, of like complexion, called on the business paper "Choo Neang," was charged by Mr. L. R. Poole with having absented himself without leave; he, Mr. Poole, as agent for Mr. Herbert, of Wide Bay, some time ago, put Choo Neang with several others on board a vessel, and paid their passage to Wide Bay; the expense of each was £13 or £14. He had received a letter from Mr. Herbert that the number of men received was one short of the number of which he had had advice; he recognised the defendant as one of those engaged and shipped by him on Mr. Herbert's account; unless he begged, he could not tell how in the mean time he had subsisted. The Bench and the complainant were in the same "fix" with this man as with the other, and had no alternative but to order his discharge. Alderman Allen said, gentlemen might as reasonably bring their horses to the justices for a breach of agreement as to waste their time with men who could not be made to understand the charge against them, much less to defend themselves; and if people will persist in importing this description of labour, they ought, for their own sakes, to provide the means of prosecuting them when they commit a breach of the law.

AUDACIOUS ROBBERY.—Yesterday afternoon, about half-past four o'clock, Mr. James Manning, a brother of the Solicitor-General, was crossing the Old Barrack Square, when he was hustled by two men, and found that his pocket-book, containing £15, was gone. He seized one of the men, but perceiving that his companion had the book, he pursued him, giving the alarm. A crowd soon collected and followed the fellow to Spring-street, where constable Clark, after considerable resistance, captured him. The pocket book was found upon him, and also a small pistol loaded to the muzzle, and a box of percussion caps. His confederate escaped.

STEALING.—Mary Murphy, Mary Neil, and Maria Sutherland, were taken into custody on Wednesday by Sergeant Brigden, of the police, charged with having on the previous night stolen a quantity of wet linen, exposed to dry on the premises of a person named Enderby, some articles of which were found in the house; the prisoners, at the time of their apprehension, were all in one house in Syret's-lane, lying on the floor in a deplorable state of intoxication; the two prisoners first named were yesterday brought before the Mayor on the charge; Maria Sutherland was in such a state that she could not be brought before the Bench, and Mr. Dowling gave orders for her removal to the Infirmary. (She is the mother of the children Sutherland so frequently found at night in the streets, and taken into custody by the police for protection). No prosecutor was forthcoming, and the prisoners were discharged. Rosanna M'Guire, also a resident in Syret's-lane, was apprehended by Sergeant Bridgen, and brought before the Mayor, charged with having stolen a tin case, of the value of 1s. 3d., from the residence of Mr. M'Intosh, in Dickson-street; the article was found in prisoner's house, but was only one article out of several which had been stolen; she at first said it was her own, and then said she did not know to whom it belonged, having been left at her house by one of the prisoners just discharged from custody. She was committed for trial at the Quarter Sessions. Robert Wilson was introduced to the Bench by Constable Rowe, who deposed that on the previous afternoon, hearing a cry "stop thief," and seeing the prisoner running at full speed, he pursued and apprehended him; he had in his hand at the time six £1 notes (produced); a man named Spencer came up soon after, and gave him into custody for stealing the notes from him at a public-house where they had been drinking; he also confined Spencer for drunkenness. William Spencer deposed that he arrived yesterday morning from the Turon, and was intending to lodge at Lansley's public-house, but was prevented doing so by the police locking him up for having had a "little drop of drink," he knew Wilson, who came to him at Lansley's public house, and asked for some money for his (Spencer's) wife, which he refused to give him; he called for some drink, and while taking it Spencer snatched six £1 notes out of his hand, and ran off with them; witness went after him, and gave him into custody for stealing; he did not, however, believe that he intended to appropriate the money to his own use, but to give it to his (witness') wife. "That's the truth, your worship," said a female in Court; "I am Spencer's wife; he has been six months at the diggings, and never sent me a penny for my support; I heard that he had arrived, and was spending money at a public-house; I asked the prisoner to go to him for some money for my use." Spencer admitted that he had been six months away, had sent his wife no means of support, and made no endeavour to find her before the prisoner came to him. The prisoner was then discharged from custody. Joseph Smith and Thomas Allen, on Wednesday, were pointed out to constable Luckings, by a man who said his name was Steel, the first for having robbed him of £20, and the second as an accessory to the robbery; Luckings confined them, and in searching them at the watch-house, on Smith was found nearly £50, and on Allen about £6. They were brought before the Police Magistrate yesterday, in due course, but no prosecutor coming forward, were discharged. William Smith; given into custody by Charles Connor, who charged him with having robbed him of £6, was also discharged, no prosecutor coming forward.

HYDE PARK.—John Strettles yesterday appeared before Alderman Egan, Mr. Ronald, and Mr. Grant, to answer an information filed by William Cogan, who described himself as an overseer employed by the Committee of Management of Hyde Park, for having on Monday last obstructed him in the execution of his duty. Mr. Johnson conducted the prosecution, and Mr. Roberts the defence. Mr. Johnson said that he appeared on behalf of the Hyde Park Improvement Committee, whose object was not the imposition of a penalty on the defendant, but to obtain an authoritative expression of their power. By the third section of the 15th Victoria No. 6, it was enacted that any person convicted of obstructing any overseer, or the person acting under the authority of the committee, should be liable to a penalty of not less than 5s. nor more than £5. Defendant had for some time depastured certain cows on the north-western portion of the land, which he asserted a right to do, although the committee had given him no permission; the overseer on Monday attempted to drive the cows to pound, but was obstructed by defendant heading them back. He did not wish to proceed for a rescue, which would involve the trouble and expense of a recourse to the Quarter Sessions, but simply proceeded under the clause cited for an obstruction. Defendant justified, he understood, under an authority given to him by the trustees of that particular portion (that set apart as a cricket ground), but whose functions, he submitted, were quite subordinate to the authority of the Committee appointed for the management of the whole enclosure: and this was the question really at issue in this proceeding. If their Worships should decide that the Improvement Committee had no power over that portion appropriated to cricketers, they will of course be relieved from expending thereupon any portion of the fund entrusted to their disposal. William Cogan deposed that on Monday last he desired defendant to remove five or six cows which had been for some time previously depasturing on the north-west portion of Hyde Park; he refused to do so, and prevented him from driving them to pound. By Mr. Roberts: Defendant enquired if the Chief Justice had authorised the impounding of the cattle, which he had not, but the Committee; he showed two papers which he said were his authorities for depasturing the cattle there; did not read them. Mr. J. C. White, honorary secretary to the Hyde Park Improvement Committee, deposed that since the date of the paper produced by defendant (April 18) purporting to be the Chief Justice's permission to graze cattle on the north-western portion of the Park, the Committee had passed a resolution to the effect that no cattle should be allowed to graze thereupon; Sir Alfred Stephen resigned his connection with the Board on Friday last; subsequent to the resolution of the Board he saw defendant on the subject, and desired him to remove his cows or they would be impounded; defendant showed him Sir A. Stephen's permission, and also a document purporting to be a permission to the same effect from the trustees, on behalf of the cricket clubs. By Mr. Roberts: Witness told defendant of the resolution passed by the Board subsequent to Sir Alfred's permission, and told him that no further proceeding would be taken until he had ascertained what the permission of the cricketers' trustees was worth; the matter was laid before the board, who deputed two members to wait on the Colonial Secretary on the subject, whose opinion was that the Cricket Club had no authority to give permission to graze cattle on the ground in question. Mr. Roberts for the defence, contended that the real question was, though it had ingeniously been kept out of sight by Mr. Johnson, had there been a rescue or not? which was negatived by the evidence that the cattle had never been out of defendant's possession, or a constable should have been set about to drive the cattle to pound, who would have proceeded as for an obstruction in the performance of his duty, more than any other mere private ranger. He submitted further, that the matter was not within the jurisdiction of the Bench, the north-western portion of Hyde Park not being in fact a public place, but vested by the Governor in trustees for a certain specific purpose. The trustees were appointed for the purpose, among others, of protecting from injury and "unauthorised intrusion" the land in question, and were equally at liberty to allow the grass to be eaten down as to employ a man to mow it down; and having granted permission, that permission was revocable not by the Improvement Committee, but by His Excellency the Governor only. Defendant acted under a written permission, and resisted Cogan because, having no authority to show for his actings, he believed him to be an unauthorised intruder. Neither set of trustees, he believed, wished to interfere with or obstruct the other, but the powers of each were perhaps not defined with that clearness to avoid a difference of opinion, and a difference of opinion existed on the subject. Under these circumstances, as Mr. Johnson did not seek for a penalty, he suggested to their worships, if they had any doubt on their minds, whether the object of the complainants would not be attained by a postponement of judgment, and an application would be made to the Governor-General for such a definition of the powers of each body as that there will be no further clashing of interests or views. After some consultation on the Bench, Alderman Egan said that the majority of the justices were of opinion that the offence of obstruction was proved, and that the minimum penalty of 5s., but without costs, should be imposed; he did not agree in the finding, being of opinion that defendant had reasonable grounds for acting as he had done. He intimated, moreover, that the Bench were unanimously of opinion that the authority of the cricketers' trustees was quite subordinate to that of the Board appointed for the improvement of the Park generally.

SLAUGHTERING ACT.—Mr. John Ryan yesterday appeared before the Bench to answer an information filed by Mr. S. H. Pearce, Commissioner of Crown Lands, for a breach of the Slaughtering Act, in having neglected to destroy by fire a certain beast which had died of disease on his premises. Mr. Cory conducted the prosecution, and Mr. Nichols the defence. The case was dismissed, and Mr. Nichols applied for the defendant's costs, when their Worships ordered twenty shillings to be paid by Mr. Pearce to the defendant. In Mr. Nichols' address to the Bench, he took occasion to comment on the provisions of the Act in question as of a very oppressive character, and stated one instance. By one of the clauses it was enacted that all animals dying of disease in any place out of the city, shall be destroyed by fire on the spot, and a penalty is imposed for removing them. In a certain country place a bullock fell down and died near a wooden building; the occupier of the house would not allow the owner of the beast to set fire to it there lest his house should also be destroyed, and a constable who came up while the debate was warm would not allow the unfortunate owner to remove the carcass for destruction. The dictum of the policeman having more weight with the grazier than the opposition of the farmer, he set to and burnt the body where it lay, in consequence of which the hut was injured, for which he was summoned before a Bench of Justices and sentenced to pay £10 and upwards for damages.

A SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER.—Yesterday, Serjeant M'Gee apprehended a man in George-street on suspicion of being concerned in the robbery at the Victoria Theatre on Tuesday evening. He stated that his name was John Johnson, but gave a very unsatisfactory account of himself. He had about his person £143 in notes, £21 10s. in gold, 3s. 11d., one 50 dollar piece, one gold doubloon, two 10 dollar pieces, two 5 ditto, and one 2½ ditto.

MAJOR WHEELER.—The friends of Major Wheeler will read with interest the following extract from the United Service Gazette. "28th—Manchester. On the retirement of Major Thomas Wheeler, who had served in this distinguished Regiment for a period of more than 37 years, his brother officers subscribed to present him with a testimonial showing the high regard in which he had invariably been held, and their deep regret at parting with such an esteemed friend. The testimonial consisted of a pair of richly carved crystal decanters, with superbly chased silver casters and carriage, which bore the following inscription:—'Presented to Major Thomas Wheeler, 28th Regiment, by his brother officers, as a mark of their affectionate regard for him, upon his retiring from the above corps after a service of thirty-seven years. Manchester, September 23, 185 .' Major Wheeler received his Ensign's commission on the 26th May, 1814, without purchase, and was placed on half pay on the 25th December of the same year, being re-appointed to the 28th Regiment in the Waterloo Gazette of the 17th July, 1815. He was promoted to Lieutenant on the 18th December, 1817; to Captain, on the 28th September, 1832; and to Major, on the 24th August, 1842. He served in the Mediterranean from December, 1817, to 1830; in New South Wales, from 1835 to 1842; and in the East Indies, from 1842 to 1846; making a total of 27 years' foreign service."

VINEYARD RETURNS.—The annual return of the acres of land under vine cultivation, within the police district of Maitland, with their produce in wine and brandy, has been prepared, being for the year ending 31st March, 1852. The returns include the vineyards and garden grounds of nineteen gentlemen, making a total of 85½ acres, the produce from which has been 13,180 gallons of wine, and 427 gallons of brandy. Last year the returns were 94½ acres under cultivation, but several additional gardens or small vineyards were included in the return. The apparent deficiency this year is thus accounted for; and is no doubt owing to the fact that many of the police (who obtain the returns) are new hands in the district, and do not know the localities so well as the older residents. Notwithstanding these deficiencies the annual returns are very valuable contributions to colonial statistics. Last year we estimated the actual ground under vine cultivation at 100 acres, knowing several growers ourselves whose ground was not included; and we estimate the ground now under such cultivation at from 100 to 110 acres, allowing for increase in some vineyards, and for others newly planted.—Maitland Mercury.

NEWS FROM THE INTERIOR.

GOULBURN.

MAY 4.—MOST MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT.—TWO MEN DROWNED. Last Saturday morning, a grey horse yoked in a cart, the shaft of which shone above the water, was found drowned in a water-hole near the crossing place at the corner of Bradley's fence, about a mile from Goulburn, and which was at once recognised as one belonging to Mr. Faithfull, of Springfield, and which was driven into this town by a gardener in his employ, named Joseph Houston. A portion of the constabulary, headed by the chief, were speedily on the spot, and who were ably assisted by Mr. Turnbull, and men belonging to Mr. Bradley's establishment, in dragging out the carcass and the cart. But the most melancholy part has yet to be stated: it appears that on the previous Wednesday, the 28th ultimo, that Houston had come into this town with a load of fruit, accompanied by a young man named David Lees, formerly in the employ of Mr. Faithfull, and that on their way into Goulburn the cart got bogged at the crossing place at Thorn's fence, and that both had to get into the water to assist the cart, also to get an additional horse from Mr. Thorn to help them out. Having got wet, on coming into the town they had a glass of something to drink at the nearest public-house; which with the uncomfortable state they were in, induced them in the course of the day to exceed: about sun-down they made arrangements to return home, a distance of about 12 miles. Houston being rather the worse of liquor, but Lees was apparently sober; not wishing to cross at the same place as they had done in the morning, they took the road leading by the Big Plain; the horse was seen going rather fast, but as Lees was considered quite capable of driving, no one feared but that they would get home in safety; but from some unknown cause the horse and cart got into the deep water hole as already stated, and the two men in it were drowned; but until the morning of the third day it does not appear that Houston's wife suspected that there was anything wrong, as he sometimes was absent for a night or two, but on that morning (Saturday) she sent in a man to see the cause of her husband's absence, and who met some persons going out with the intelligence that the horse and cart belonging to Mr. Faithfull was taken out of the water. As a matter of course strong suspicions were entertained that the men were drowned. Our chief constable and others immediately procured grappling irons, and all Saturday, till dark, continued to drag for the bodies, but they could not be recovered. Mr. R. Craig applied to Mr. Thorn for the use of his boat, which was at once granted, and early next morning the Chief Constable, with several of his men and others had it put on Mr. Thorn's dray, and conveyed to the scene of the occurrence, where every exertion was used, but till about 3 o'clock there was no appearance of the bodies of either. Every part of the water-hole had been gone over again and again, and many were of opinion that the bodies were not there, but had been taken down by the current; and which was rather rapid at the time the event took place: the Scotch plaid and the Manila hat worn by Lees having been found further down the Creek; but about the above hour the head of Houston appeared, and the body was speedily brought to the bank, and conveyed to the Goulburn Hotel. Exertions were renewed to recover the body of Lees, but it was sundown before they succeeded in doing so. The body was taken to the same hotel, where an inquest was held the same evening by Dr. Waugh. In the course of the evidence taken on the occasion, Dr. Gerard, who viewed the bodies, stated that there were no marks of violence on the bodies, and that he believed that the death of each was from drowning. The verdict recorded was "Found drowned." The event caused considerable excitement in this town, both being very well known. Lees had been at the various gold fields, and had been rather successful, and had just returned from Port Phillip, and was making arrangements to go back by the overland route, and was to have started the day on which his remains were conveyed to the grave. He was a native of Fifeshire, N. B., and has been about three and a-half years in the colony.

IT IS NOT ALL GOLD THAT GLITTERS.—A tall person of polished mein, made his appearance in Goulburn about six weeks ago, and put up at one of the principal hotels, stating that he had come on a visit to Australia from India for the benefit of his health, which object we presume he had secured, for he left Goulburn somewhat suddenly, having taken French leave; before doing so we believe he drew several checks on one of the Sydney Banks, which were returned, no such person being known at the bank. We are sorry to say that several others, besides the innkeeper, have been taken in, we believe a warrant for his apprehension has been issued.

POLICE COURT.—Tuesday, 4th May.—The ticket of Thomas Jones, lately charged, as previously reported, of stealing two watches, was cancelled.—James Tucker, a ticket of leave man, was charged with stealing a watch from Mr. William Simons, after the larceny had been committed the prisoner had pawned the same to Mr. William Digman, who gave evidence that the prisoner had done so. Tucker was committed to take his trial at the ensuing Court of Quarter Sessions.—Benjamin Carey was fined in £2, or to go six weeks to gaol for using obscene language in the vicinity of the Goulburn Hotel.

STAGE COACH.—We are sorry to see the coach run between this and Sydney, by Messrs. Mandleson, Rutledge, and Edwards, has been discontinued. We believe that Mr. Mandleson is making arrangements to recommence, and to run the whole distance on his own account.

The Bathurst burr and Scotch thistle, those obnoxious weeds, have fairly taken possession of the vicinity of Goulburn. We believe that they have also taken root and become very prevalent at the Murrumbidgee. The present season has caused it to grow most luxuriantly, and if something is not done to stop it immediately, they will become a pest to the wool-producers through the length and breadth of the land in a very short time. We hope that the Legislative Council, when it meets, will take some steps to check the evil.

WOLLOMBI.

MAY 3.—The preparation of the ground for wheat is in a more backward state than has been the case for very many years. In ordinary seasons a large breadth has been sown during the month of April, but the quantity now in the ground is very trifling indeed, and many of the farmers have not ploughed a furrow. This state of backwardness may be to a small extent from want of energy; but the great want is labour. The season has been so favourable for vegetation that the surface of the earth is so thickly covered with grass that until eaten down it is scarcely possible to turn a furrow, and many settlers have borrowed stock to eat down the grass, which is now uniformly luxuriant, with great abundance of water. To what extent wheat may be sown this season is just now very uncertain; but the present prices are strong inducements to the settlers for exertion in getting sown as great a breadth as possible. So much depends on the fall of rain in this colony in securing a crop, that the settlers continue sowing until the month of August, and as good crops have frequently been reaped from that sown at that late period as at an earlier one:—but the chances of a good return are best secured by early sowing and planting, as every year's experience clearly demonstrates. With our gold fields, of such great extent and production, and the very ample returns for labour in this splendid climate, if the people of Great Britain and Ireland could be made aware, on authority which would be unquestionable, the advantages of their emigration in securing for every sober and industrious man great competence and ultimate independence, the rush that is now for the United States and Canada would soon be turned to this colony, to the mutual advantage of the present and future settlers.

A very unmistakeable evidence of public opinion with respect to the manner in which justice is administered at the Bench is now in operation in the form of a subscription. When it became known that Mr. Sullivan, J.P., had recommended a person named Lyndsey to be placed on the commission of the peace, letters of remonstrance against the appointment were forwarded to his Excellency the Governor-General by Dr. Du Moulin and two other individuals. The Doctor's letter having been deemed by the magistrates of the Maitland Bench a libel on Major Sullivan, Mr. Du Moulin was committed for trial, and at the late Maitland Circuit Court the case was proceeded with; but the jurors having differed in opinion on the subject, the matter lapsed. It appears that the inhabitants of this district consider that Mr. Du Moulin, in writing the letter referred to, had acted for the general advantage of the people, who ought to hold him scatheless by subscribing the amount of the expense to which he has been subjected by the prosecution.

As respects the education of the rising generation, this district has been in a very deplorable state; for with the exception of a short space of time, whilst a denominational school had an existence, there has not been a public school during the last three years. At the township, where there had been a Wesleyan school for many years, its discontinuance was much regretted, and it therefore appeared to a few individuals that if a national school were established that its increased usefulness might be more highly appreciated. After considerable opposition, both direct and covert, this object has been at length effected, and the school is now in full operation.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—In your editorial remarks of Wednesday, you comment with some justice on the proceedings of the Moreton Bay clique, Messrs. Hodgson and Co.; for their proposed address to thank Earl Grey for his obstinacy and pertinacity of purpose regarding the separation of that district from the main colony, in order to fit it for the reception of convicts. And certainly in ordinary cases the "three tailors of Tooley-street," (Moreton Bay) would have had no chance of competing with the talent and leviathan force of the Australasian League but seeing that neither the magnitude of the combination of four colonies banded together for one common purpose; and that purpose the improvement of the social condition of a whole people; nor the discovery of the Australasian continent being a gold producing one, has yet had the slightest effect in altering the views of Her Majesty's Ministers, as represented by Earl Grey, (than whom perhaps a worse one has not been since the loss of the American colonies), and seeing also that the gold discovery itself has not yet produced any sensitive increase to our population - coupled with the positive fact, that we are worse off than ever for labourers, I really am almost inclined to espouse the cause of the "Moreton Bayites," who would be fools indeed to remain tamely passive to the want of labour, and see themselves utterly ruined through not having it of some kind. When a Pagan and highly immoral nation are being introduced amongst us as labourers, and even those the very worst of their detestable race, I doubt much whether good old English convicts are not the better of the two—even if we do get such men as "Willmore the murderer" amongst them; but as I really do not wish to see the face of either the one or of the other, it again becomes necessary for the public to arouse themselves to the serious question of emigration. The last Legislative Council voted £100,000 for the introduction of labour, and supposing that sum procures us 10,000 persons, our condition will then be no better off than it was before the gold discovery; because fully that number have ceased to be in the common acceptation of the term labourers; having so far improved their condition as to be now employers of labour. It is not to be supposed that the colonies can annually vote large sums of money for emigration purposes, for even supposing £100,000 were voted every year, the introduction of 10,000 souls annually would not certainly more than supply one-fourth of the wants of New South Wales alone, and all the other colonies are in the same lamentable condition as ourselves for the want of real labour. It appears to me that the Australasian League have neglected a golden opportunity of impressing on the Home Government some scheme by which the colonial wants might have been supplied, and the pressure and burden of a redundant population in the mother country have been reduced. By combining their energies in resisting oppression and proposing remedial measures at one and the same time, they would have been listened to perhaps patiently, and their just complaints possibly entertained—but true to the English character so expressively represented by the term "John Bullism," they are doggedly persisting to argue the colonial complaints on one point only, and that point the one upon which the Home Government cannot by possibility give up without heavy and serious loss to the nation; but if England had been shewn that the expense and loss would have been more than compensated, in withdrawing the convicts, by a simultaneous movement in introducing large masses of the labouring poor, and that the bettering their condition, would have improved the commerce of the mother country with her colonial empire, the representations of the Australasian League would then have had the most favourable attention paid to them, and the wishes and wants of the four colonies would not have clashed with those of the "three tailors of Tooley-street."

That we are worse off than ever for labour I believe no one will deny; house rent within the last three months has risen fully thirty per cent., and buildings cannot be erected at all at the present price of labour (except in such high rented situations as the heart of the city); by advertisements in the public papers wages are offered for only making certain articles, which could be purchased ready made in England for two-thirds the value of the mere labour price offered here—articles of consumption such as bread and all necessaries of life have risen considerably from the difficulty of procuring journeymen—servants are barely procurable; and yet nothing will apparently rouse the apathy of the colonial public; as however one letter in your paper of the same date as that which calls forth these remarks, signed J. F. J., speaks of the desirableness of something being done, perhaps a discussion of our wants through your columns before the Legislative Council meets again may do some good, and be the means of ascertaining public feeling and opinions on the subject, in which case I may perhaps again trouble you.

I am, Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
JOHN J. MONTEFIORE.

May 6.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—In your paper of the 5th instant there is a plan suggested by J. F. J., which I think requires a little alteration. He begins by telling us (what everybody knew before) that there is a law authorising parochial immigration, and goes on to observe that if it were put into practice, it would be the means of sending to this colony from 15,000 to 20,000 souls, the cost of their passage being paid by the inhabitants of New South Wales. The plan I would venture to suggest (it may or may not be better) is this, that the unions should appropriate some part of their poor rates towards sending out able-bodied folks of both sexes, and binding them to pay the cost of their passage within 12 months after landing, which might be very easily done by the employers of the above folks deducting a reasonable sum from their weekly wages, and paying the same to a responsible party appointed by Government. Another thing, the labouring classes and men of small capital have only recently been made aware of the benefits they would derive from emigrating, and there is still a growing anxiety to know what and who they are likely to become acquainted with, and naturally ask what could I do with the capital I could scrape together were I to emigrate? Let the true state of affairs be known, the price of land, necessaries of life, &c., &c. Let them be told what class of people are most wanted here; and lastly, though not leastly, let them be told that there are places in abundance where they could hear the word of God preached, and schools for the education of their offspring. Trusting some more able champion will be found to take up the cry for labour,

I am, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
A FRIEND TO AUSTRALIA.

Parramatta, May 5.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—The respectable dwellers in the vicinity of the Queen's Wharf were much astonished to find that only one applicant had his license refused in that quarter (as per report in this morning's Herald), it being notorious that there are other licensed houses near the same spot which are conducted in a manner similar to the above-noticed house. They are continually resorted to by the same females, who perambulate from one house to the other every evening from seven o'clock until midnight, to the annoyance and disgust of every respectable passer-by.

Doctor Mackellar, while being examined at the Police-office yesterday, was about to explain his knowledge of the other houses, as to the manner of conducting their business, when he was interrupted by one of the gentlemen on the Bench, who asked his opinion about the Brickfield-hill Ghost! The enquiry caused the Bench, the lawyers, the "Blues," and the auditory to become convulsed with laughter—so much so that one of the "unwashed" enjoyed the enquiry in a manner that the Bench ordered him to be ejected from the Court by force. The result was, that the explanation about to be given by the Doctor was no farther inquired into by reason of the merriment just stated.

A memorial to the Sydney Bench is in course of preparation by the complaining dwellers in the above-named vicinity, coupled with the published statements of Messrs. C. H. Salmon, C. Mackellar, C. Mitchell, and E. Lane, as to how far the other nightly singing-shops are entitled to be indulged with a night license.

By inserting this you will oblige,

Yours,
OBSERVER.

Lower George-street, May 6.

[If the respectable residents had made complaints against the other houses referred to, we presume the result would have been the same; but if those most interested do not interfere, the magistrates can scarcely refuse a license.]

The Thames Police Magistrate put one of the provisions of the Mercantile Marine Act in force, for the first time, last Saturday. William Seaborne shipped at New York in the Ellen Simpson, under a false name, with the object, apparently, of avoiding the discovery that he had deserted from another ship. The new law affixes a penalty of £5 for the offence, to be paid to the Board of Trade from wages due to the seaman. Mr. Ingham inflicted the fine.—Spectator.

ENGLISH EXTRACTS.

AUSTRALIAN EMIGRATION.

(From the Liverpool Albion, December 20.)

CAPTAIN STANLEY CARR, who previous to the intestine troubles of 1848 and 1849, had long been known in Germany as an eminent agriculturist and stockholder, has just returned from Port Phillip, to which place, in consequence of the events we allude to, he has been induced to transfer his capital and enterprise. During an absence of eighteen months, Captain Carr has travelled over most of the Australian colonies, and we are told has become possessed of extensive sheep and cattle stations in the district of Portland Bay, upon which a number of Germans whom he had previously taken out are now comfortably located. One of the main objects of Captain Carr's present visit is, we understand, to procure a supply of labour sufficient to fill the places of those persons who deserted pastoral and other pursuits for the gold fields in New South Wales, whither hundreds are stated to have been hurrying with an eagerness which no inducement on the part of their employers could repress. By the latest accounts it is calculated that the departures from the port of Melbourne alone to Sydney averaged upwards of 400 persons a week; and although it was difficult to estimate the number proceeding to the mines overland, it was computed as at least equal to that by the sea route. Nor was it supposed that this exodus then taking place in the month of July, or winter in Australia, would diminish. On the contrary, it was expected that the approach of spring, as more favourable at once for travelling and mining operations, would at least treble the extent of the movement.

Such a state of things present and prospective must naturally have excited amongst the holders of pastoral property in Port Phillip the gravest apprehensions, more particularly when it is remembered that its sheep alone amount to upwards of seven millions, and its cattle to two millions, requiring altogether the attention of above ten thousand persons in the several occupations of shepherds, stockmen, hutkeepers, shearers, &c. At such a crisis, Captain Carr, as president of the Industrial Society at Port Phillip, has come home to endeavour to save the colony from impending disaster; and we are informed that he has already been in active communication with Earl Grey and the Emigration Commissioners, with a view to the immediate adoption of measures to meet an exigency so imminent. What we now state of the circumstances of Port Phillip will no doubt, from the same cause, soon equally apply to South Australia and the northern but extensive pastoral district of Moreton Bay; and all who bear in mind how much we are identified in our maritime, commercial, and social interests with the settlements in question, must feel as an inevitable consequence, that any catastrophe which can effect them as exporters of nearly two-thirds of the wool brought into the British market, and also as the consumers of our manufactures and other goods, cannot fail to militate against the trade and industrial operations of this country.

We trust therefore, that the authorities in Downing-street and Park-street will come forward on this occasion with a proper spirit, and remove all obstacles which existing regulations may present to Australian emigration. Hitherto we are aware that the commissioners have been averse, no doubt from the proper motives, to lending their assistance to the emigration of large families,—a rule which, however justifiable in other respects, cannot but be regretted, inasmuch as the pressure of distress is most felt by persons of that class, and they become sooner or later chargeable upon parochial relief, whilst when removed to the colonies they become the most stable settlers, and each member of the family, at least those above nine or ten years old, instead of being a burden or "incumbrance," as it is the fashion to call them in this country, is there able to contribute by his services to the domestic income.

Thousands of persons of the description we allude to would, we are sure, be ready to avail themselves of any offer which would facilitate their removal to a land where every prospect of comfort and independence awaits them. Many such are now pressing upon the parishes or their landlords, and it only requires combined efforts on the part of both to assist a movement which promises such beneficial results to all concerned.

The arrangements for this purpose should, however, be placed in judicious and experienced hands, and the persons to whom may be confided the selection of the emigrants, should have a personal acquaintance with the wants of the Australian colonies, either from a residence in that part of the world, or other sources of practical information. Heretofore this consideration has been much overlooked, but we hope to see it regarded in future.

So long as the colonies of Australia supply funds for the importation of emigrants, they have a right to expect that the agency of selection should be entrusted to proper hands. Such a duty cannot be performed by any mere amateur—it must be left, under proper supervision, to those who possess the qualifications we have already indicated.

FATAL AFFAIR WITH THE NEGROES AT LAGOS.

(From the South African Advertiser, February 28.)

AN attack on the slave-traders of Lagos was made on the 25th of November last, by the combined crews of a squadron of cruisers, which included the officers, seamen, and marines of the Philomel, 8, Commander Forbes; the Harlequin, 12, Commander Wilmot; the Volcano, steam-vessel, Commander Coote; the Niger, 14, screw-sloop, Commander Heath; and the Waterwitch, 8, Commander Gardner; the force consisted of 23 boats, with 260 officers and men, under the command of the senior officer, Commander F. G. Forbes, of the Philomel.

The King of Lagos, Corcioco by name, had forbidden the men-of-war boats coming from up the river to Lagos; but previously Mr. Beecroft, the consul at Fernando Po, with the commanders of the Harlequin and Waterwitch, and Lieutenant Patey, the commander of the Bloodhound steam-tender, had been received by the King with every demonstration of respect. They, however, failed in their object to engage the King to promise, on the part of himself and subjects, not to favour the slave trade. Mr. Beecroft determined on seeking another interview with the King, and in order to show his sable Majesty the hopelessness of any successful persistence in carrying on the inhuman traffic, arranged that the armed boats of the squadron should accompany him up the river under a flag of truce.

Accordingly, a course over the bar having been surveyed, the Bloodhound steamer, with a white flag, and the following boats of the squadron, Mr. Beecroft in Commander Wilmot's gig starting 100 yards a-head, proceeded at daylight of the 25th of November towards the river:—

Philomel.—Commander Forbes in the whaleboat; Lieutenant Williams in the pinnace, with 12-pounder carronade, and with cutter and whaleboat.

Harlequin.—Commander Wilmot in the gig; Lieutenant Boughey in the pinnace, with cutter and two whaleboats.

Volcano. Commander Coote in whaleboat; Lieutenant Reeves in paddleboxboat; Lieutenant Robinson in pabbleboxboat, with cutter.

Niger.—Commander Heath in the gig; Lieutenant Dunn in the pinnace, with three cutters and whaleboat.

Waterwitch. — Commander Gardner in whaleboat, Lieut. Graham in pinnace, with cutter and whaleboat.

As the force crossed the bar, and about four miles distant from the point, a heavy fire of musketry was directed towards it. No notice, however, was taken of this ineffectual show of opposition to the progress of the boats, and the flags of truce were kept flying. When within about a mile and a half of the town the Bloodhound grounded; and, as she could not be got off, the boats formed line and proceeded up the river, and kept on, with the flag of truce flying, until they received a heavy fire from some guns and musketry on shore. The fire was harmless on account of the distance; but now the boats opened their fire with shrapnell shells and round shot, the Niger at the same time throwing a shell or two on the point near the mouth of the river. After exchanging a continuous fire for nearly an hour with a beach lined for more than a mile with bodies of men, the boat dashed at the shore and effected a landing simultaneously at one spot, and then, leaving a sufficient guard at the boats, about 160 officers and men fought their way into the town. They were met, however, with most determined resistance on the part of the natives, who disputed every inch of the narrow streets intersecting each other, and when beaten out of one street ran round by the back ways and showed front again at the end of the other streets. After some gallant fighting in this way against an increasing enemy, who amounted to at least 5000, and having two officers killed and six men woundod, Captain Forbes fired the houses in the neighbourhood, and retreated in good order, and having re-embarked proceeded to the Bloodhound, got her afloat the same night, and the next morning re-crossed the bar: the force having sustained the following loss—comparatively small when the number of the enemy is taken into account, and when it is considered that, in addition to their force of half-a-dozen large guns, and as many swivels, which were constantly served, almost every house was a fortification:—

Killed.—Mr. Dyer, mate of Niger; Mr. Hall, mate of ditto.

Wounded.—Charles Hancock, sergeant, R.M.A., of the Niger, seriously; John Goulding, gunner, R.M.A., of the Niger, dangerously; Urbane Collett, bombadier, R.M.A., of the Niger, severely; William Hall, seaman, of the Niger, severely; John M'Carty, seaman, of the Niger, severely; Richard Gomett, seaman, of the Niger, severely; J. Todhunter, A.B., of the Niger, severely; a quartermaster of the Philomel; two men of the Volcano, severely. In addition to the above, others received hurts from spent balls.

The Niger took the wounded to Sierra Leone, and proceeded in search of the Commodore, and it was understood that Commodore Bruce had proceeded to Lagos to organise such a force as would compel the King of Lagos to submission; the Harlequin, in the meantime, by her presence off the coast, preventing the King of Lagos from forming any new expedition against the missionary establishment at Badagry.

ENGLISHMEN IN CHINA.

(From the Times.)

ON the north-east coast of China, just opposite the straits of Corea, and within a short cruise of the sea of Japan, stands a town which within these last ten years was only known to Europe by the reports of enterprising voyagers. Whether Marco Polo ever visited Shanghae we do not at this minute recollect, but Mr. Fortune we think, proceeded once to that region of green teas and yellow silks, and duly enlightened his countrymen with an account of his expedition. At the present time, however, this remarkably accessible port is the seat of a British community, which, by virtue of certain treaty-engagements, has there settled and established itself. Now, an Englishman, as all the world knows, does by no means conform to the rule prescribed for cosmopolitan adventurers. He will not, though at Rome, do as Romans do. He insists upon legs of mutton in Paris, and will have his Sunday dinner in India though he kills a goddess for his beef. As Frenchmen construct a café and a theatre, Americans a newspaper office and a "bar," so do our countrymen institute butchers' shops and dog kennels, courts of law and corporations, committees and chairmen. If any person desires to see the rapidity with which true British feelings can be developed, we beg to present him, after the fashion of dioramas, with a prospect of our performances at Shanghae.

Of course an Englishman likes a park. Our old nobility possess parks. Robin Hood lived in a park, and Shakespeare could not be kept out of a park even by dread of the gaol. The spirit, we may presume, is perpetuated in the Order of Ancient Foresters, and the "greenwood-tree" is at any rate familiar to all of us by song, if not by sight. So a park was to be instituted at Shanghae; and very wonderfully it seems to have been done, for though the settlement itself is younger than the Prince of Wales, there never appears to have been a period at which a noble forest was not included in its precincts. We have, in fact, no alternative in relating the affairs of this little community but to plunge at once in medias res, as they seem to have done themselves. Every one of their institutions is represented as not only full-blown, but as rather going off than otherwise, and at this very moment it is possible that we may be embroiled with the Mantchoo Tartars on the coast of the Yellow Sea in respect of a new Goodwood, which it is thought desirable to substitute for a Shanghae Newmarket gone quite out of date.

To make the story short, we must abruptly state that the "proprietors of the Old Park" at Shanghae having merged their interests with great public spirit in a new and improved concern, a committee of shareholders was appointed to lay out and establish the projected domain, which was to include a "racecourse" more spacious and convenient than that which it had been resolved to abandon. But there are landowners even in China, and in pursuance of the scheme it became as indispensable to conciliate these "interests" as it was in the case of the Crystal Palace, and will be in that of the new National Gallery. Accordingly, the commmittee waited on Woo Weiting, the "tepow," or tithingman of the district, and made overtures for the purchase required. The tepow, unfortunately, proved as like an English landowner as one pea is like another, and a certain "Guild," known as the "Hing An," showed itself a veritable city corporation in its contumacious resistance to all improvements. However, the committee having bought over some claimants and "managed" others, proceeded to lay out the "New Park," availing themselves of a public way round the lands of the obdurate Guild. Hereupon they were attacked by the populace of the hundred, who turned out with staves and stones, and behaved themselves exactly like British peasantry at the stoppage of a footpath or the enclosure of a common. On this a report was made by the committee to the Consul, by the Consul to the native magistrate, and by the magistrate to the Consul again, operations being meanwhile suspended till the result of the application could be known.

The case for the Chinese took a very plausible form. They alleged that the land which the Guild was so indisposed to sell was a burying-ground, and that though they were willing to accommodate the "western merchants" in a reasonable way, it was unfair to ask so serious a surrender on their part for the mere purposes of amusement on the part of others. Even on the presumption, too, that this particular plot was reserved, the cemetery of their forefathers would still become an enclave in a British racecourse, and such an arrangement was naturally deemed inconsistent with the conventional repose of the dead. Moreover, on the general issue they alleged that the ground was undeniably theirs, that they had a right to sell or keep, and that they preferred the latter alternative. All this was certainly very good argument, but it suffered considerably under the damaging reply of the "committee." By the M'Andrews, M'Donalds, and M'Phersons composing this able council, it was duly represented that the whole plea was false. The existence of the cemetery they did not deny; indeed, they urged the remarkable fact that all China was one huge burying-ground. According to their statements it appears that the antiquity of the "Flowery Land" is amply vouched for by the remains of the population who have been deposited, generation after generation, in the place where they lived, like dead leaves in a primæval forest. No spot of ground had ever yet been purchased in those parts which was not a cemetery, but the circumstance had never yet been alleged in bar of sale, but only in enhancement of price. As to the particular instance of veneration now set forth, the committee disposed of the plea very convincingly by exhibiting a written offer of the Guild to sell this identical enclosure—forefathers and all—to the shareholders of the New Park for a certain exorbitant sum; and considering, indeed, that there is actually a competition amongst Chinamen to sell their own lives at the rate of nine shillings per head, or thereabouts, it is hardly to be credited that they can be over scrupulous about their remains.

Looking impartially at the arguments, we have little hesitation in concluding that the whole whole affair is one of pounds, shillings, and pence. We do not believe that the Chinese take their stand upon the "burying-ground" with any purpose but to magnify the bargain. Still in a general point of view it can hardly be doubted that every extension of our settlements in these parts, whether by cession, purchase, or any other means, must be more or les obnoxious to a people so jealous of foreign intrusion, and it is worth consideration whether the social requirements of the settlers might not be circumscribed with some advantage to their own tranquillity and our peace. They are specially entitled by treaty, it is true, not only to construct residences and warehouses, but to "plant trees and make places of amusement," nor can we gainsay their argument, that in such a climate these places of healthful resort acquire extraordinary value. But if Englishmen at Rome, as Mr. Langdale writes, are too few and migratory to need a church, surely Englishmen at Shanghae might contrive to dispense with a "racecourse" during their sojourn amongst Tartar tea-growers. The port in question, we presume, is seldom selected as a residence for life, and we should have imagined that the predominant idea of the community would be to make money and depart at the earliest possible moment. At any rate, it obviously concerns the Imperial interests that the points of collision between ourselves and the Chinese should not be unnecessarly multiplied, and as the question of the New Park stands remitted to the decision of the Consul, we trust that officer will eschew every risk of embroilment, even at the peril of displeasing the gentlemen sportsmen under his ministerial charge.

MUTINY AMONGST THE CONVICTS AT WOOLWICH.—On Saturday the convicts who had been at work during the day in the dockyard, on their return to the Warrior convict ship, where they sleep during the night, showed symptoms of insubordination and defiance of their guards, by several of the gangs rushing into one of the compartments set apart for one gang, and refusing to separate and go to their proper places until their grievances were redressed. The mutinous convicts, about 130 in number, complain that the authorities have broke faith with them, as certain periods had been fixed when, if they conducted themselves well in the interval, they would be sent out of this country and obtain tickets of leave on their arrival at their destination. The time at which several of the convicts expected they would have been sent out of the country having been exceeded, owing to the difficulty experienced by the authorities in finding localities where that class would be received, has been the cause of the present insubordination. The whole of the convict guards were kept on board the ship during the night, in case of any outbreak, as threats were used, and on Captain Montague Stopford, acting superintendent of the dockyard, being made acquainted with the mutiny, he ordered the crew of the Fisgard flag-ship to remain under arms during the night. The dockyard police of the K division were also under arms in case any violence should have been attempted. On Monday Captain Whitty and several of the authorities from London visited the Warrior, and examined several of the ringleaders; but the result of what took place has not yet been made known. In order, however, to prevent their being taken by surprise, the whole of the convict guard who did duty during the day in the dockyard were also kept under arms at night. On Tuesday it became unbearable, when they returned from their work in the dockyard to take their dinner on board the Warrior convict ship. They no sooner entered the ship than they rushed down, took possession of two of the decks, defying the guards or any of the military to come near them, at the same time singing, cheering, and swearing; and some, who had got hold of pipes and tobacco, commenced smoking. The guards were threatened in such a manner, that they represented to Mr. Masterman that it would be dangerous to go out with the convicts in the afternoon, if examples were not made of some of them. Captain Stopford, acting superintendent, was immediately communicated with, and the aid of the guards of the Royal Artillery and Royal Marines called on board, and the guards in charge of the convicts, with drawn cutlasses, went below, and brought up and heavily ironed thirty-eight men of the most outrageous, and disarmed them of the knives, forks, and sharpened files of which they by some means became possessed. Twenty of the convicts were in the course of the afternoon conveyed to London in the police vans, sent down to Woolwich for the purpose, and safely secured in Millbank Penitentiary. The other eighteen were also heavily ironed and taken on board the Wye in the river.—Ipswich Express, January 3.

BANKRUPTCY LAW OF SCOTLAND.—A committe, consisting of members of the Wholesale Drapers' and Grocers' Association, have lately issued a report on the defects of the existing bankruptcy law of Scotland, and the serious inconveniences which arise from two separate systems being simultaneously in operation in Great Britain, where the trading and commercial interests of the people are identical. The committee contend that from its not giving an early control over the assets, and the consequent jobbing for trusteeships, from the exorbitant commission granted to trustees, the delay of eight months allowed for a first dividend, the anomalous powers of the trustee, the want of public examinations, and other causes, the Scotch system is about the worst that could be tolerated. They urge, therefore, upon the commercial and mercantile interests of Scotland the propriety of initiating measures with the view to the assimilation and improvement of the bankrupt laws of both countries; and, although they do not consider the English code to be absolutely perfect, they strongly recommend an adoption of all its most important features. Times.

GERMAN LITERATURE.—We see it stated in correspondence from Leipsic that the catalogue of books for the fair in that city shows, that in the short space of time between the Easter fair and the 30th of September there were published in Germany no less than 3860 new works, and that there were on the latter date 1130 new works in the press. Nearly five thousand new works in one country of Europe in one half year! How impossible it would seem for strangers, having their own life to live—their own literature to read—to keep on the advanced lines of a national mind exhibiting this prodigious literary activity! The amount of intellectual labour dimly represented in the catalogue appears to have had on the whole a healthy impulse. Of the 3860 works already published, more than half treat of various matters connected with science and its concerns. That is to say, descending to particulars—106 works treat of Protestant theology; 63 of Catholic theology; 38 of philosophy; 205 of history and biography; 02 of languages; 194 of natural sciences; 168 of military tactics; 108 of medicine; 169 of jurisprudence; 101 of politics; 184 of political economy; 83 of industry and commerce; 87 of agriculture and forest administration; 69 of public instruction; 92 of classical philology; 80 of living languages; 64 of the theory of music and the arts of design; 168 of the fine arts in general; 48 of popular writings; 28 of mixed sciences; and 18 of bibliography. It is satisfactory to see, after their recent comparative neglect, that science and the arts begin to resume their old sway over the German mind.—Athenæum.

The "own correspondent" of the Dublin Warder, proffers the following as an excuse for the dullness of his last weekly communication,—"Bedad, I had a botherin' bout ot it last night imaginin' I was at the diggins in Austhralia, and peltin' away in sarch of dhry lodgins', with a pillow-case full o' goold dust over my showlder, whin, as I consaived, sime o' the Abbeyridgenies thought to rob me before my face; so what did I do, only took my lawful wife be the band of the night-cap, and afterwards by the hair of the head, and dhrew her about the room, suppoein' all the time that 'twas a common robber I was rough-handlin'. Well, you never heard a finer cry at a funeral in the counthry when 'twas the fashion to screech at 'em, than the dacent woman set up, and small blame to her, at being treated in such a manner. She was sure 'twas some sort of burglary was on foot, till she distinguished my voice, rightly callin' her 'a black savage,' and ordherin' her on pain of death, to take her hands off my property."

THE BALLOT.—The Morning Herald instances St. Alban's as a specimen of the effect the ballot may be expected to have in stopping corruption. At present, says the Herald:—"St. Alban's is bought and sold, but the transaction is a hazardous one. A Mr. Bell may be entrapped now and then; but for one gull there are half-a-dozen shy birds. Sir R. Carden would not bite. Mr. Repton paid nothing. Mr. Cabbell paid only £500. Like smuggling, the trade is sometimes profitable, but it is full of danger. Adopt the ballot at St. Alban's, and all becomes easy. The Coppocks and Edwardses will then have the game in their own hands. An election at St. Alban's is carried by 300 votes. And there are more than 300 voters who look for a bribe. Carry down, therefore, to St. Alban's, like Mr. Bell's agent, 'four bags, each containing 500 sovereigns,' and the election, if properly managed, is your own. And as the electors under the ballot are to vote secretly, all may now be transacted without fear of subsequent detection. There is to be no poll-book, and no scrutiny. The candidate once returned, and all is over. The system naturally adopted would be that of a betting-room. 'I, Edwards, am ready to wager any elector 40 to 4, or £5 against half-a-crown, that Mr. Bell does not come in.' This is made public. Three hundred of the electors make this bet. These three hundred have, therefore, a direct interest in returning Mr. Bell. They vote for him, and he is duly elected. They attend the betting-room in the evening of the same day, and receive punctually the money they have won. All that the ballot has done, is to make a system of bribery more easy, complete, and effectual than it ever was before. Subsequent scrutiny or investigation is, by the very idea of a ballot, altogether excluded."

AGRICULTURAL REPORT FOR DECEMBER.—During the greater part of this month the weather has been seasonably fine, and highly favourable to farming operations. The sowing season having been concluded somewhat earlier than usual, and under the most satisfactory auspices, farmers in general, in order to meet future demands upon them, have threshed out very large quantities of both wheat and barley, of which extensive sales have been effected at drooping prices. It is much to be regretted that so splendid a crop of wheat as that grown this year should, from necessity, be forced off at the present low figures. On the whole the cattle trade has ruled tolerably firm, and prices have been from 2d. to 4d. per 8 lbs. higher than at the corresponding period in 1850. The turnip and other root crops having turned out very good, both as to quantity and quality, the stock in most of our large grazing districts has fared extremely well. Hay continues in great abundance, and may be purchased on very low terms. With very few exceptions, our accounts respecting the appearance of the winter wheats are very satisfactory. The weather having continued comparatively mild, they have not stood much in need of snow to protect them from easterly winds. It is stated that the breadth of land under wheat culture in the eastern, midland, and northern counties, has somewhat increased this season, as some farmers are of opinion that that grain will be selling at higher rates during the greater portion of next year, and which opinion is certainly favoured by the present state of the trade abroad. Exceedingly large imports of Peruvian guano having taken place, the stock of that article has increased to 80,000 tons.—Farmer's Magazine.

Dr. Chalmers, in the "Reminiscences" which have just been issued, is made to tell the following story, after the relation of a grievance that had been met by a profusion of apologies but by no attempt at redress. "I defer to the utmost," says the Dr, "to this complaisance and gentlemanly feeling; but it reminded me of a Glasgow story, relative to a Bailie Anderson, and Lady Betty Canningham. The Bailie happened to be an elder in the church of St. Enoch's, and Lady Betty a hearer. One of Lady Betty's old servants applied to the Bailie for parochial relief. The Bailie said, Lady Betty should relieve her own servants, and declined to accede to her request. When this was told to Lady Betty, she retaliated by going to church on the following Sunday, with the firm determination of putting nothing in the plate; and the Bailie happening to be officiating at the door, she made the most profound courtesy to him as she passed, and sailed magnificently up the centre of the church. The Bailie was at first so much struck, that he stood aghast, and took a moment to recover himself. He then entered the church, and addressing Lady Betty in a voice so loud that the whole congregation might hear him, 'Gi'e us less o' your manners, and mair o' your siller, my lady.'"

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—In your issue of this morning there appears an advertisement from Mr. and Mrs. Ewebank Lough, denying their having been engaged as Master and Mistress of the Congregational schools, Pitt-street; and as it contradicts one in the previous day's publication bearing my signature, I trust you will allow this a place in your columns in explanation.

As secretary to the committee of the above named schools I was present at the meeting when the testimonials of the applicants for the situation were considered, with Mr. Lough's among the number.

He, being the party selected and in attendance, was called in before the committee. In his presence were read the minutes of a previous meeting detailing particulars, and the amount of remuneration; when he was asked if he were willing to accept the situation on those terms, he replied in the affirmative; and in the usual way he was requested to leave the room a few minutes, and being again called in, was told the committee had elected him and Mrs. Lough to the office, for which he expressed his thanks.

I may further state, that Mr. L. was in possession of full particulars several days previous to his appearance before the committee, and actually came prepared with a scale of the fees of other denominations, and a plan for fitting up the school-rooms.

I trust I have said sufficient to prove the committee have uttered nothing but truth in stating to the public that Mr. and Mrs. Lough were elected, and had accepted the situation.

I am, Gentlemen, yours, obliged,

SAMUEL THOMPSON,

Honorary Secretary.

A NEW FACT.

TO the Public of New South Wales. Many and stupendous have been the results of the discovery of modern science within the last ten years, producing mighty revolutions in the changing of old opinions and preparing the human mind for the reception of new ideas and powers, of which we were formerly unconscious. Powers that bid fair in their rapid and increasing development to establish the supremacy and mastery of man over the very elements.

Monsieur Prieste, after long and laboured investigation and experiment announces to the world that he has at length perfected an apparatus remarkable for its simplicity and portability, which enables its possessor to walk the waters of the ocean with perfect ease and safety at a speed far outstripping that of an ordinary steam-boat, and it is intended to submit this remarkable power to the inspection of the public, on the appropriate occasion of the first anniversary of the glorious discovery of the gold in this colony.

M. P., has engaged a Steamer with a Band of Music, in order that those who may wish to witness his experiments may make an agreeable holiday on the occasion, and also, to prevent the too full exhibition of his invention in its present unpatented state. During the trip, at proper places, Monsieur and Madame Prieste will skate the liquid waves, demonstrating beyond the possibility of cavil, the practicability of walking the sea by means of this unique apparatus.

The steamer will leave the Circular Wharf at 10 A.M. Tickets, 5s. each, to be had at Messrs. Ford, Piddington, the Royal Hotel, George-street, Mr. Aldis, Mr. James Entwistle, and Mr. R. W. Moore, City Wine Vaults. 10660

MESSRS. WHEELER AND M'KONE beg most respectfully to solicit a portion of the public patronage to their

NEW TAILORING ESTABLISHMENT,

Just opened, at 84, King-street East.

In launching a new adventure upon the great ocean of Commerce, they are well aware of the difficulties and impediments with which they will have to contend; but being thoroughly conversant with the causes which have led to permanent triumph with some, and final failure with others who have preceded them, they flatter themselves that by imitating the course pursued by the former, and avoiding the errors of the latter, they will be enabled to proceed in their undertaking to the entire satisfaction of their patrons and themselves.

The practical knowledge of every branch of their trade obtained by Messrs. W. & M., by long experience, enables them confidently to assert, that articles of Dress manufactured in their Establishment, will be found, both as to the style in which they are cut, and the quality of the materials of which they are composed, to be unsurpassable by the productions of any other Sydney house; whilst the terms upon which they intend to conduct their purchases, namely, "for Cash only," will enable them to sell at much cheaper rates than those charged by their competitors.

The entire working management of the business will be undertaken by the Principals, who trust, by entirely devoting their time and experience to the tastes and interests of those who honour them with their custom, to gain that approbation from the Gentlemen of the Metropolis and the colony generally, which it will be at once their pride to deserve, and their study to retain. 10732

SPLENDID FATTENING STATION,
In the the Salt Bush, Country of the Lachlan and Murrumbidgee, with which will be sold 4000 A1 SHEEP.

☞ This is unquestionably one of those favoured selections of country, which abounds in that nutritious feed so well known for its fattening qualities, every portion of the land with the exception of a small alluvial strip on the River (to which latter it has nine miles frontage!) being covered with salt bush.

MR. MORT has received instructions from the representatives of the late Mr. M'Leay, to sell by public auction, at his Rooms, George-street, on MONDAY, 31st May, at 11 o'clock,
That most valuable and fattening station known as SOUTH THONONGA,
"Which is bounded on the east by a line on the River Lachlan, nine miles west of 'Honuna,' Mr. Warren's run, and running six miles south; west by a line commencing on the river 3 miles east of Wallarby or South Boonga, Mr. Evans' run, and running 6 miles south; north by the Lachlan River; south by large plains.
IN FLOCKS OF 3000,
This run will carry nine thousand sheep. It is abundantly watered, and is proverbial for its fattening qualities. Its frontage to the river, as above stated, is no less than nine miles. It is situated on the Lower Lachlan, and its distance from the junction of the Lachlan with the Murrumbidgee is about 60 miles; its position, as regards the two great markets of Sydney and Melbourne, being about equidistant.
THE SHEEP.
It is needless to say, being of the late Mr. M'Leay's flocks, are unquestionably good—the wool of the past year averaging one shilling and eight-pence per pound in the London sales, the weight of fleece being 2 lbs. 2 oz. They are warranted sound and never to have been diseased, and consist of 3000 Ewes
2000 Wethers,
all of which are first-rate sheep.
☞ A station so admirably situated for supplying the two great markets with fat stock, where the expenses of station are a mere bagatelle, from the great size in which the flocks are kept, must command the attention of those on the look-out for a really profitable investment. The closing of the estate matters is the cause of the sale, and the property is one really deserving of attention,
Terms on application. 10280

THREE THOUSAND SIX HUNDRED SHEEP,
And the IMPROVED STATION of ANN'S VALE, on the Burrowa River.

MR. MORT is instructed by the proprietor to sell by public auction, on FRIDAY, 14th May, at 11 o'clock, 3620 Sheep, contained in the following flocks:—

	about
1st Flock at Canary Station,	1020	ewes, breeding
2nd. ditto ditto	1170	weaners
3rd ditto, at Lower ditto .	850	breeding ewes
4th ditto ditto	580	1 & 2 year old wethers
Total	3620

The ewes were all carefully mouthed last year by the superintendant, and broken mouthed sheep sent to the pots, and they were all culled again in March last, so that they are REALLY IN FIRST-RATE ORDER.
They are perfectly sound, in capital condition, and the wool is of very superior quality.
The Station has five miles frontage to the Burrowa River, is only eight miles distant from the township, and is capable of depasturing
SEVEN (7000) THOUSAND SHEEP.
The improvements are very complete, and the auctioneer's instructions are "That he cannot say too much in favour of either Sheep or Station."
Terms, liberal. 9766

THE DISTRICT OF WELLINGTON.
5260 prime Sheep, together with the station of COOKANDOON.
Terms may be arranged on application to the Auctioneer, and will be made known at sale.

MR. MORT has received instructions to sell by public auction, at his Rooms, George-street, on MONDAY, 31st May, at 11 o'clock precisely,
A most compact and desirable Station, in the favourite district of Wellington, known as Cookandoon, situate on the Gunningbah Creek, 100 miles below the Township of Wellington and near to the station of Messrs Hay, Cornish and Captain Bull.
The run is composed of Myall Plains, and has seven miles frontage to the creek, in which there is at all seasons, a capital supply of water. The country is open, well grassed, very fattening, and admit of flocks of from 2000 to 3000. It will carry a large number beyond the quantity now upon it.
A most important feature in connection with this run is, that the native blacks are of that tractable quiet character as to make them most valuable as shepherds, in which capacity they have been employed for some years past with great advantage to the proprietors, rendering them quite independent of European labour.
The run is only 150 miles from the diggings, were there is always demand for the fat stock.
THE IMPROVEMENTS
are very comfortable and complete, comprising
Good verandah cottage
Kitchen and store
Woolshed
Stock yards
Sheep yards
Men's huts, &c., &c., all of which are in good order.
THE SHEEP,
which are warranted clean, and never to have been diseased, consist of—
2,500 Young ewes, of ages
1,500 Weaned lambs
1,200 Wethers of ages
60 Well-bred rams
5,260 more or less.
Six hundred of the wethers are now fat, and the whole with that exception are young sheep. They were shorn in September last, and prior to the time of delivery will have nine months' wool upon their backs. They are in fine health, and the quality of their wool is very good.
Stores, bullocks, drays, &c., must be taken at a valuation.
☞ The advantages attached to this property are many: The run is of a most fattening character, the flocks may be be kept in 2000 to 3000, the cost of labour is comparatively nothing, for the blacks are and have long been the shepherds; there is a capital market for the fat stock, and within three months from the time of delivery the clip will be off the sheeps' back, and the number increased by the drop of lambs far beyond what will cover the withdrawal of the fat wethers, which are at once available in part payment of the purchase-money.
All further particulars may be learnt on application to the Auctioneer. 10277

Farm No. 3.
Consisting of two hundred and seventy-five acres, county of St. Vincent, No. 5 of the suburban allotments near Ulladulla, commencing at the north-east corner of Robert Garratt's purchase of three hundred acres, and bounded on the west by the east boundary of that land, a line bearing south ninety-four chains; on the south by a line bearing east thirty-five chains; on the east by a line bearing north eighteen chains, to a branch of Narawalla Creek, by that branch, and by Narawalla Creek; and on the north by Narawalla Creek, upwards to the north-east corner of Garratt's purchase aforesaid.
☞ The whole properties are well watered, and upon the land is a large quantity of that peculiar species of timber known as the blue gum, which is invaluable to our colonial ship builders, as is exemplified in the fact of some of our best and largest coasting craft being entirely constructed of this durable wood. From the nearness of the property to the boat harbour (which by the way is considered the safest on this part of the coast), a great facility is afforded for the shipment of this valuable article of commerce to adjacent ports.
The district is well calculated for dairy purposes, the climate being very moist and favorable to the habits of milch-kine in all seasons, and would doubtless prove highly remunerating as a dairy farm.
